SSG Launches Pencil Seed Project
by Andrei Josh L. Natal

The Supreme Student Government (SSG) spearheaded the annual Pencil Seed Project to continue its initiative in nurturing generosity and service by encouraging students to donate school supplies on September 8 in the open court.

The Pencil Seed Project's objective is to motivate students to contribute to education through the donation of school supplies, which aims to foster a sense of service within the school community. The launch of the project upheld the goal of encouraging students of all levels to extend their support to those in need, seeking to promote empathy and selflessness among students.

In her opening remarks, SSG President Bernice I. Ventura shared that the Pencil Seed is more than just a launch but a way to inspire students to support education and create opportunities for success. She emphasized the importance of collective effort, highlighting that when students come together, even the smallest action can make a meaningful change. She stated,

"Through generosity and commitment, reminds us when we work together, we can truly change lives"

The ceremonial ribbon cutting commenced after the opening remarks, marking the official launch of this year's Pencil Seed Project. The ceremonial ribbon was cut by the School Principal Dr. Alexander S. Acosta, alongside the respective Vice Principals of each department.

Furthermore, Dr. Alexander S. Acosta emphasized the SSG's role as the students' inspiration in showcasing their support to those in need. He also stressed that the initiative done by the SSG leaders serves as a reflection of the leaders they aspire to become. He emphasized,

"A leader that will always give value on the of importance of life, not of corruption"

Concluding the launch, the SSG Vice President, Jan Audrey Mendoza, discussed that this project is the beginning of something greater. She highlighted how this program signifies the start of their long-term effort to serve others and to create a change.

The Pencil Seed Project is an annual initiative held by the Supreme Student Government (SSG) that encourages students to give to those in need while nurturing generosity, compassion, and leadership.
