“Honestly, winning the award felt so surreal, as other delegates were also worthy of such an award, as well. In the end, I could have never been more grateful to the Lord, my parents who kept supporting my passion in debate, and PSDDS, along with Ma’am Shey and Sir Dave.”

Further, the Best Delegate of the United Nations Youth Committee, Tiamzon, highlighted the dedication and commitment necessary to attain the award. He stated,

“It is a great opportunity to receive this award, it isn’t easy to earn either, and it is a genuine form in order to prove your will and hard work.”

The annual two-day event led by SIS-Q is an initiative that seeks to allow students to learn about the current situations in the world which gives students a voice to engage in diplomatic sessions.
