The Search for the Preschool Prince and Princess aimed at bringing the students outside of their comfort zones and develop their confidence. Consequently, the competition was one way for the department to realize its environmental advocacy which targets the rehabilitation of the school.

Furthermore, the contest was initiated through an open invitation to all parents and students who were interested to participate. Each Preschool section had one pair representative and with the concept of 'Adopt-a-candidate,' other sections throughout the school voted to show their support toward their assigned candidate.

Teacher Apphia A. Laroa, the chairperson of the event, shared that though the preparation and production of the event was challenging, it was all worth it in the end. She further elaborated,

“Their (the candidates) confidence really developed, and then they tried to get out of their shell. You can really see that the development is there. That is already a big impact for the children, especially when making friends with the other students.”

The Preschool Family shares smiles and hearts in a picture, marking an end to the event.

As the Masters of ceremony, Teacher Wilma and Teacher Greg welcome the audience.

Is there anything that Preschool teachers can't do for the love of teaching? Two teachers take the intermission number to heart.

Dr. Nida H. Garcia, Vice Principal of the Preschool Department, thanks both the parents and students for their enthusiastic participation.

Dolled up in their colorful gowns and sparkly garments, the young princesses move along to the music.
